Deputy Editor 2023-2026

(Gender Reassignment, Gender Reconstruction, Aesthetic Surgery)

Journal of Plastic, Reconstructive and Aesthetic Surgery

The Journal of Plastic, Reconstructive and Aesthetic Surgery (JPRAS) is a leading international peer review journal, with high impact factor and international readership figure for this field. It seeks to disseminate high-quality clinical and translational scientific research in order to enhance international standards of care in reconstructive and aesthetic plastic surgery, and support evidence based practice.

The Journal has a strong Editorial team with a range of subspecialty remits, and is seeking to expand this in order to reduce processing times, provide an ever better author experience, and continue to develop its international standing. Under the Editor's direction, and with technical support from the publisher, the successful applicant will work as a Deputy Editor to secure high quality scientific and clinical content, and manage submissions through the peer-review process. There is scope to be involved in publishing strategy and to help build other aspects of the Journal's outputs, including editorials, invited reviews, and webinars.

This post is optimally intended for an individual with a subspecialty remit for aesthetic surgery, genital reconstruction and gender reassignment. It recruits a 0.5 session stipend.

The Deputy Editor must possess the following:

- A background in relevant clinical or translational research, and/or postgraduate education
- Sound editorial judgement
- Excellent written and verbal communication skills
- Ability to meet tight deadlines
- Current equality and diversity training
- Institutional support for their involvement with JPRAS, and the time required to deliver the role
- An awareness of current developments within the Specialty

This role would suit an enthusiastic academic, or clinical plastic surgeon who has a demonstrable understanding of relevant areas of scientific and clinical literature, plus a clear desire to uphold the high standards of a peer review publication. Demonstrable involvement in post-graduate education is desirable, and while it is expected that the post will appeal to members of the organisations affiliated to JPRAS Open (currently BAPRAS & EURAPS), this is not an exclusive condition since JPRAS is an international title.

Please note that the Deputy Editor must commit to delivering services for a number of hours each week; to become familiar with journal databases and the publisher's online manuscript processing system; and to attend infrequent meetings and conferences. In light of this, a modest stipend is granted to the successful candidate.

Further information may be obtained from Prof. Andrew Hart, Editor of JPRAS (email Andrew.Hart@glasgow.ac.uk) or Matt Burrows in the Secretariat (tel: 0207 269 5201).

If you are interested in applying for the position of Deputy Editor, please return the application form and brief curriculum vitae to matt.burrows@bapras.org.uk before the closing date of 9 MAY 2023. The post is available from 1 July 2023. Interviews will be held during May 2023.
