Combined Summer Scientific Meeting

25–27 June 2015

Concertgebouw, Bruges, Belgium

PRESIDENTS' WELCOME

Dear Friends,

Welcome to Bruges.

This is the second joint plastic surgery meeting between the British and the Belgians.

The first one was held in Glasgow in 1992 with the respective Presidents Bill Reid and Romain Vanwijck, who trained in Canniesburn. The special relationship of the Belgian President with British Plastic Surgery has provided the platform for this renewed collaboration.

We have put together a varied program to represent as many aspects of our specialty as possible. We have joined forces with the Belgian Hand Group on the third day of the congress. Hand Surgery in Belgium is more and more becoming a separate specialty.

Bruges combines the setting of a modern city with a Unesco World Heritage Site. In the Renaissance, it was called the "Venice of the North" with its beautiful canals and historic monuments. Bruges is easily accessible for visitors from abroad and the naval port of Zeebrugge is only a short distance away. Bruges is also the capital of West-Flanders where, in World War 1, the frontline was situated, immortalised by John McCrae in his poem "In Flanders Fields".

World War 1 was the birthplace of modern plastic surgery, which will be the theme of our first day of the conference. More British servicemen died in World War 1 than in any other conflict in history. More than 700,000 died. Of the 3 battles of Ypres, the second has the sad legacy of being the first conflict where chemical weapons were used on a large scale. The third battle, Passchendaele, was the one where trench fighting was particularly severe, with over 450,000 casualties over an 8 km front in a 4 months period.

245,000 British soldiers died or were listed as missing. It is not surprising that, with such devastation, the need for restoration of aesthetics and function became of paramount importance for the survivors.

The second day of the congress is dedicated to cosmetic surgery, with speakers with international reputations, on the special topic of "facelifts". In parallel with this, we are delighted to be hosting the "Global Leadership Forum" in conjunction with the American Society of Plastic Surgeons (ASPS) and the "ICOBRA" Meeting, which will share information on setting up breast implants registers.

On Saturday the 27th we will close the meeting with a day of parallel sessions of hand surgery, in parallel with reconstructive and breast surgery.

We hope that you enjoy our joint meeting and spend time exploring magnificent Bruges and to visit some of the World War 1 memorials.

Kind regards,

Nigel Mercer
President, BAPRAS

Frans Missotten
President, RBSPPS
